We extend a warm welcome to all our guests. Whether your intention is to unwind, discover new horizons, or engage in exhilarating activities, we assure you an unforgettable experience that will linger in your memory for years to come.

We hope you have a wonderful time in Saudi Arabia, filled with joy, adventure, and lasting memories.

Superyacht in Saudi Arabia

Saudi Arabia's Red Sea region is quickly becoming a hotspot for superyacht tourism, especially with the Kingdom's ongoing developments aimed at high-end tourism under Vision 2030. Foreign-flagged superyachts are increasingly welcomed, particularly around new luxury destinations like NEOM's Sindalah Island and The Red Sea Project. The strategic location of the Red Sea, with proximity to Europe and the Mediterranean, makes it attractive for global yachting seasons.

New Marinas and Facilities:

Sindalah Island, a part of the NEOM development, features an 86-berth marina specifically designed to accommodate large yachts, including berths and buoys for superyachts up to 180 meters. This marina aims to establish Sindalah as a hub in the global yachting calendar, offering year-round docking, fueling, and maintenance services

The Red Sea Project will include several luxury marinas and resorts along the coast, designed to support superyachts with state-of-the-art facilities. It spans over 90 islands, with an eco-friendly approach and planned facilities for yachting and diving

Ease of Access and Regulations:

Saudi Arabia has eased maritime regulations to attract international yachts, including streamlined visa and docking procedures. This makes it easier for superyacht owners and charter companies to navigate Saudi waters and visit new developments along the coast.

Attractions for Yacht Visitors:

Beyond marina facilities, superyacht visitors can explore Saudi Arabia's Red Sea reefs, diverse marine life, and cultural sites. Destinations like Al-Balad in Jeddah and Al-Ula provide unique onshore experiences for yacht tourists, adding to the appeal.

These initiatives reflect Saudi Arabia's commitment to positioning its west coast as a premier destination for luxury maritime tourism.

Camel Rock

The monuments of "Camel Rock" in Al-Wajh Governorate, northwest of the Kingdom is made of limestone and is considered one of the rarest rocks.

DUBA

Duba

King Abdul Aziz Fort is one of the many signs that things are changing in the kingdom. Sitting in the quaint seaside town of Duba, the fort creek. Its mud-brick walls and a few basic rooms that remain cool in the mid- afternoon heat serve as a reminder of the simple life lived by its inhabitants. This little fort was built by the founder of Saudi Arabia, King Abdul Aziz, early in the 20th century. It's square-shaped, with a central courtyard and a disused well. At the time of research, the fort was in the process of becoming Haql's very first museum, with crates of antiquities waiting in the small rooms where they are due to be displayed. The fort has been painted white and is a nice example of early Saudi defensive architecture.

Wadi Al Disah

A mountainous area located in the southwest Province of Tabuk, Saudi Arabia. It is 4000 square meters away from Tabuk.

The Great Canyon of KSA

The Great Canyon of KSA, Tabuk Province has one of the most incredible concentrations of natural wonders in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, including many still to be discovered. In between the newly famous Jibal Hisma and Wadi Qaraqir is a more discreet but fascinating place, Al-Shaq. This name means the tear (or rip) which makes sense as here the earth has been literally torn apart by tectonic forces. That is the reason why this place is also known as the Great Canyon of Saudi Arabia.
